

"But you didn't say 'some'!"

Holy shit! A less-privileged person is saying something about the behavior of people like you that isn't positive!

Does this hurt your feelings?

Yes!

Are you guilty of the behavior in question?

No!

Yes?

Good for you! So they're not talking about you, specifically. Now listen up and pay attention, because not everyone's experiences are like yours.

Shame on you. Pay close attention because you've hurt people, and there's no time like to present to stop.

"But we're not all like that!"

"But I don't mean to hurt them!"

If you're one of the "good ones," then stop making this all about your feelings.

So listen up, you might learn something.

"But how can I learn anything if they won't be nice to me?!"

*shuts up and listens*

Their experiences are what they are, and I accomplish nothing by taking offense.

I don't care who I hurt. They can grow a thicker skin.

You are part of the problem. Go hit yourself in the face with a hammer.

Oh?

Good. Keep doing what you're doing.